Synopsis:

Explore 150 Trails in the Huntsville Metro Area

From easy strolls on paved greenways to challenging hikes on rugged mountain trails, Huntsville native Marcus Woolf offers two guidebooks covering 150 trails in the Huntsville metro area. For more than 25 years, Woolf has worked as an editor and writer for outdoor adventure magazines and other media. In Hiking Huntsville Vol.1 and Hiking Huntsville Vol.2, he provides thorough descriptions of the local terrain and identifies trail highlights, such as scenic overlooks, waterfalls, and historical landmarks. Each trail description includes essential information such as distance, hiking time and hiking difficulty. Plus, each book includes detailed, easy-to-read maps with important waypoints marked along each route.

Biography of Marcus Woolf:

Marcus was born in Huntsville and grew up on Monte Sano Mountain, where he discovered his love for hiking. In 1994, he launched his career as an outdoor journalist, and his work has appeared in national magazines like Backpacker and Outside. He is also the author of the guidebook Afoot & Afield: Atlanta. When he isn't mapping trails for books, Marcus enjoys backpacking, canoeing, and kayaking with his wife, Wendy.
